What an exciting time to be a part of the University of Colorado family! The University of Colorado Buffaloes football program is making an impact on the field, off the field, in Boulder, across Colorado and across the country. There is something magical about bringing people together who might not otherwise be together. When you are at Folsom Field, it does not matter if you are from Pueblo, Grand Junction, Englewood, Colorado Springs or Lamar. It does not matter if you are studying engineering, philosophy, or business. Whether you’re an athlete, a member of the band, a business partner, a parent, a student, or an alumnus, when we are at Folsom Field, we are all Buffs. Few things bring people together from different backgrounds like sports at CU. And, I don’t know about all of you, but we need a whole lot more of that now more than ever: bringing people together with a common purpose.

At the University of Colorado, we bring people together who might not otherwise come together across all four of our campuses, the communities we serve, and the state of Colorado. The COMBAT Center at the CU Anschutz Medical Campus brings innovative treatments from the lab to the field and back to the community. UCCS offers tuition grants to undergraduate active-duty military students. CU Denver signed a historic agreement with the Northern Arapaho Tribe. At CU, we find out what we have in common. We learn from and with each other, we learn from and with people who are different from us. At the University of Colorado, we have more in common than not.

Together,
Ilana
ilana.dubin-spiegel@cu.edu
@ilanadspiegel
University Counsel advises CU community on impact of Supreme Court decision
A U.S. Supreme Court decision earlier this summer prohibits universities from considering race as a factor in college admissions, but it does not affect the University of Colorado’s pursuit of a diverse student body, university leadership says.

Regents Governance Committee hears update on Laws and Policies review
With a long-running formal review of all Regent Laws and Policies nearing completion, university leadership is working with the Board of Regents to begin formally reviewing Regent Laws and Policies on an ongoing basis.

Gun violence prevention panel features CU Boulder expertise, research

UCCS to offer a tuition grant to undergraduate active-duty military students
UCCS is proud to announce that it will be offering a tuition assistance grant to active-duty military personnel who are currently using military tuition assistance through a new Active-Duty Tuition Assistance Grant.

Anschutz Acceleration Initiative inspires strong response
CU Anschutz Medical Campus leadership has announced that 76 letters of intent are moving forward in the selection process for awards from the Anschutz Acceleration Initiative.

CU Center for COMBAT Research’s mission in spotlight at joint event with El Pomar Foundation
The University of Colorado Center for Combat Medicine and Battlefield (COMBAT) Research and the El Pomar Foundation this week held a joint event to showcase the center’s research and mission to save and improve lives on the battlefield and at home.

Regents announce committee member assignments for 2023-24
The CU Board of Regents last week announced committee member assignments for the 2023-24 fiscal year. The year’s schedule of committee meetings will be announced at a later date.

University of Colorado Denver Signs Historic Agreement with Northern Arapaho Tribe
Collegebound students from the Northern Arapaho Tribe will have access to an endowed scholarship to attend the University of Colorado Denver, thanks to an agreement signed between the university and the tribe today.